1811: The Year of Decision
June 25, 2011
Indiana Center for Applied Technology, Vincennes University
Vincennes, Indiana

Join Historic Southern Indiana for the second annual educational symposium dealing with the War of 1812 and the impact on the Indiana Territory, the Midwest, and the nation. Our first symposium, “The Gathering Storm: The Rise of Tecumseh,” addressed events prior to and during 1810 that led up to the conflict. This year’s program will deal with the events of 1811 that led up to the War of 1812, most notably the Battle of Tippecanoe.

Who Should Attend?
The event is designed for all interested persons—history scholars, K-12 teachers, history buffs, residents in Vincennes and the Wabash Valley—and anyone attracted to reflecting on our heritage as we mark an important event in our country’s history.

The registration fee of $20 includes lunch, refreshments, and a registration packet. Participants will have the opportunity to tour selected historic sites in Vincennes during lunch.

Agenda:
Saturday, June 25, 2011
8:45–8:55 a.m. Registration—Vincennes University’s Indiana Center for Applied Technology
9:05–9:30 a.m. Welcome and Introductions—Leslie Townsend, University of Southern Indiana
9:30–10:30 a.m. Jonathon Hooks, Mississippi University for Women, “Redeemed Honor: The President-Little Belt Affair and the Coming of the War of 1812”
10:30–11:30 a.m. Lisa Morales, North Central Texas College, “America is Destined to Win! Congressional Debates in 1811 and the Strange Financial Reasoning behind the War of 1812”
11:30–1:15 p.m. Lunch/Tours/Poster Session
1–2 p.m. Charles Niemeyer, United States Marine Corps, “War Comes to the Chesapeake Bay, 1813-1814”
2–3 p.m. James Bass, Oklahoma City University, “Which of these articles has your father broken?: Historical Interpretation on the Middle Ground”
3–3:30 p.m. Break
4:15–4:30 p.m. Wrap up and Adjournment

Featured Speakers
James Bass, assistant professor of history at Oklahoma City University, received his B.A. and M.A. from Bowling Green State University and his Ph.D. from Purdue University. He specializes in early American and Native American history and the history of race in the Americas. His book Winning the West with Words: Language and Conquest in the Lower Great Lakes will be published by the University of Oklahoma Press later this year.

Jonathon Hooks is an instructor in history at Mississippi University for Women. He received his B.A. from Elon College, his M.A. from East Carolina University, and his Ph.D. from the University of Alabama. His areas of expertise include diplomatic history, military history, the War of 1812, and the American Revolution.

Lisa Morales is an instructor in history and economics at North Central Texas College. She holds a Ph.D. in history with a secondary field in economics from the University of North Texas. Her research interests include finance in the early national period, the development of banking functions in United States, and the financial history of the War of 1812.

Sponsorship
This symposium is sponsored by Historic Southern Indiana, an outreach program of the University of Southern Indiana. Inkind and financial support has been provided by the University of Southern Indiana’s History Department, Vincennes University, George Rogers Clark National Historical Park, the Eastern National Park and Monument Association, the Vincennes/Knox County Convention and Visitors Bureau, and the Vincennes War of 1812 Bicentennial Committee.
